The RPS is an educational charity committed to bringing photography to everyone. Founded when photography was in its infancy to make the art and science of photography more available, today we remain a world-leading photographic community with members throughout the UK and overseas.

Whether in person or streamed online, the RPS hosts a range of events open to everyone, including workshops, talks and exhibitions. The Society also recognises the importance of developing the next generation of photographers and, for example, supports the Sharp Shots Photo Club, which delivers bespoke courses and workshops for young people.

The London Region of RPS has over 1,000 members and is very active, with eight or nine events each month across the Capital. It offers opportunities for photographers of all levels to learn and develop their skills in positive and supportive environments, whether at regular meetings and group events, on group photo walks or by taking part in projects and exhibitions such as this.

The South East London Group provides a local forum for RPS members who live and/or work in this area. The group meets monthly in Petts Wood to share their photography and ideas. This Exhibition showcases the work of 25 members.
